

This post and picture was on the FB ice climbers page. This is from Comet Alley, a steep gully off the East Fork Road:

Today we found that this gully has some significant loading. We triggered a few wind slab slides on the approach. We managed to get a quick lap on the route and got out before it got loaded more. TBH with more unconsolidated snow I'd reconsider going there.

Advisory Region

Northern Gallatin

Avalanche Details: Ice climbers triggered small avalanches in E. Fork Hyalite

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Mon Dec 6, 2021GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Wed Dec 8, 2021

Northern Gallatin, 2021-12-06